

The system allows users to manage client-related information, perform banking operations such as deposits and withdrawals on their accounts, and consult transactions carried out in the system. Additionally, the system provides the capability to generate and consult reports on performed transactions and account balances.