

The user can manage dynamic forms in which different types of elements can be added and viewed. The system facilitates the creation of customized forms that include components such as text fields and data entries. These forms should be accessible, easy to modify, and clearly present the information.